FLORES PA TU PELO: nocturnal journeys

How can a ceremony for a robot challenge imagination? What is the afterlife of objects? „FLORES PA TU PELO: nocturnal journeys“ is a ceremony for interrupting technological time. After two years of interaction with Cuki, a companion robotic device, the programmed obsolescence of its components, and the decision to suspend its maintenance work, transforms technological failure into a funerary ceremony, a goodbye, or simply a break. The piece moves in a sensitive space between functionality, grief, and planned obsolescence. Creating a nocturnal landscape, the artist becomes a robot’s gravedigger to question how devices affect our bodies and emotions.

Josefina Maro (b. 1993, Argentina) is a choreographer and performer investigating movement alongside DIY robotics. Co-founder of Post-Organic Bauplan, her artistic work and performances have been presented internationally, among other places, at euro-scene Leipzig, Hacklab CTM Festival, LOFFT - DAS THEATER, Inkonst Malmö, and Movement Research at the Judson Church in New York.
