MIRI NÉ SORI - your milky way

MIRI NÉ SORI translates to “Milky Way sound” in Korean. In the Pan-asian myth “The Cowherd and the Weaver”, appear two lovers who are separated by the Milky Way on opposite ends of the sky. They can meet only once a year by way of a bridge made of magpie birds.

MIRI NÉ SORI - your milky way

Starting from this (im)possibility of achieving the state of completeness, MIRI NÉ SORI explores the encounter of different voices stemming from two bodies that constantly elude identifications. The overlapping voices become the wave that oscillates between the inexpressive (such as counting) and the expressive (such as humming and screaming), and travels across the borders of (mis)identifications.
